the Proposed Final Judgment as written allows and encourages significant anticompetitive practices to continue, would delay the emergence of competing Windows-compatible operating systems, and is therefore not in the public interest. It should not be adopted without substantial revision to address these problems.

Billies latest vow is to Kill Linux. Now a little monkey and good to be a large gurilla. He has teams visiting the enterprise companies offering incentives not to employ linux and us Microsoft products. They have pernission to sell these products cheap or actually give them away to keep them out of their networks.

Please, reconsider the final judgement.
